

Synopsis

When Lucy Swan, a college freshman, goes to a party with her best friend, she cannot wait to take the world by storm and experience all that life has to offer. But the party becomes a nightmare when the boy she meets rapes her in the upstairs bedroom. Afterwards, confused and upset, she spirals out of control. She reaches out for help, but is confronted with an ineffectual society. Lucy learns that she is the only person she can depend on. We fastforward 10 years later and Lucy is a rising star at her law firm. Most of her nights are spent working in her office. Friends and relationships have fallen to the wayside, and for help she depends on her 9mm special. Her work is her life until one day she is forced to confront her past and make a decision – her job or her silence.

I'll Take Care of You

Produced by Gintare Urbutyte
Directed by Morgan Peterson

Director

Morgan Peterson

Originally from Indianapolis, IN. Morgan Peterson studied acting at Ball State University and then at the Stella Adler Studio of Acting in New York City. Turning her focus to film production she has produced the documentaries "Men From Nowhere" and "Bronies: The Extremely Unexpected Adult Fans of My Little Pony," as well as directed the shorts I'll Take Care of You at Santa Monica College and The Argument. She is currently filming her thesis film "The Greats" at UCLA School of Theater, Film and Television.

Professor Salvador Carrasco and director Morgan Peterson on set of I'll Take Care of You

Producer

Gintare Urbutyte

Gintare is an arising Producer from the other side of the world, Lithuania. Her passion for film and creative self-expression led her to chasing the Hollywood dream since she was 15 years old. First moving to England, then moving to LA, Gintare is now living in Orange in pursuit of her Bachelors degree. Having produced I'll Take Care of You at Santa Monica College and You've Got to be Kidding at Chapman University, Gintare is producing original web series that will premiere soon.

Producer Gintare Urbutyte and director Morgan Peterson on set of I'll Take Care of You

Lead Actress

Natalie Victoria

Having started her career in theatre, Natalie was awarded "Best Actress in Dramatic Category", in the Hollywood Across America Showcase in 2009. Named one of "The Most Inspiring People of 2011" by Gladys Magazine, Natalie's first leading lady role in a feature film came in 2012, with a breakout role playing the loveable, clumsy, awkward, girl-next-door Ellie in zombie/comedy "Deadheads".

Following the success of "Deadheads," other filmmakers took notice and began to audition her. Natalie went on to book a series of other leading roles including that of Lucy Swan in I'll Take Care Of You.

Kayde McMullen as Michael and Natalie Victoria as Lucy.

SMC Film Program

Following a highly successful pilot program, Santa Monica College is launching a two-year degree program in film production designed to prepare students for professional careers in the motion picture and television industries while giving previously unheard voices the technical skills to bring their unique viewpoints and stories to the screen.

SMC's recently approved Associate in Science degree in Film Production is spearheaded by Professor Salvador Carrasco.

Executive Producer

Salvador Carrasco

Salvador Carrasco is a Mexican film director based in Santa Monica, California. He is the writer/director of the highly acclaimed and influential feature film The Other Conquest about the Spanish colonization of Mexico. Carrasco has won numerous film and academic awards, and is currently developing new film projects. He is a tenured film professor at Santa Monica College, where he is the Head of the Film Production Program, recently featured in Variety magazine.

Salvador Carrasco and director Oliver Stone doing a Q&A at Santa Monica College.

Awards

Winner - Merit Award, International "Best Shorts Competition" / Women Filmmakers

Winner - Women's Independent Film Festival

Official Selection - Other Venice Film Festival

SANTA
MONICA
COLLEGE

For more information please contact:

Ronja Jansz
(310) 593-3964
RonjaJansz@gmail.com
Film Festival Coordinator
Santa Monica College