THEE COMMONS (TROPA MAGICA)

A Music Video by BRACERO
(5min, US, 2018)

LOGLINE:

A grandmother takes a moment to relive the 1991 Quinceañera celebration of her granddaughter, Ruby, but soon discovers that the VHS tape has been partially recorded over with a wrestling title match and a Mexican Banda video, creating a visual remix and reinterpretation of her Ruby's transition into womanhood.

SYNOPSIS:

On her ceremonial transition into womanhood, a quinceañera princess's involvement with her male escorts leads to visible tension between two young suitors. Partially recorded over with a wrestling title match and a Mexican Banda video, things come to a head in the final quince dance sequence when the chambelanes fight it out to be her number one guy amidst cosmic VHS tracking misalignment.

DIRECTOR AND WRITER (BIO):

Andrew is an independent filmmaker from Los Angeles, CA. He is the youngest of seven children of Mexican immigrant parents. He received his MFA in Film Production from the School of Cinematic Arts (USC), with an emphasis in writing and directing. Andrew was a recipient of both the Rodolfo Montes and the Latino Alumni Scholarship while at USC. He is a co-founder of the Latinx production company BRACERO, developing and producing projects with Latinx artists such as Las Cafeteras, CONTRA TIEMPO, and the Latino Theatre Company. He is currently developing an independent feature set in Tijuana, Mexico.
