1. One of the film industry's least represented groups gets some attention this week. On Saturday, Nov. 17, the NewFilmmakers Los Angeles Film Festival will show a slate of seven short films of Native American, Aboriginal and Inuit cinema. It takes place at 7 p.m. at the South Park Center. The event is part of a day-long festival that runs from 4-11 p.m. and include other activities and film screenings, including Sometimes Our Friends Come Over (and sometimes we're all alone) by CalArts alum Daniel Watkins. The film explores Millennial relationships in the era of President Trump. At 1149 S. Hill St., (213) 741-7400 or newfilmmakersla.com.
