

SAY YOU WILL

ABOUT

Following his release from the juvenile hall at fourteen, Jeovany "Jeo" Salgado finds out he is subject to a gang injunction - a secretive law enforcement tool that will follow him for the rest of his life.

Fast forward to fourteen years later, his mother and youngest brother unveil Jeo's chronicle and how their three lives were shaped by the enduring abuse of the criminal justice system in America.

DIRECTOR

Mariel Sosa is a Peruvian Director and Photographer. She completed a Bachelor degree in Film Production and Art History at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles, California. Her experience as a woman in the industry has allowed her to dig deeper into portraying stories that encircle marginalized and underrepresented communities. “Say You Will” (2020) is her latest short film.

The Salgado Family.

Jeo Salgado is a 27 year old Fullerton-native who only until a few days ago came off of a gang injunction. These injunctions are limitations forced on all known associates and family members of ex, current or suspected gang members. The purpose of this doc is to look at how these racially prompted injunctions have affected Jeo's life and his family.

Jeo first went to jail at fourteen, for getting into a fist fight, and ever since then he has been in the police's blacklist. The consequences of his past, as confessed by him, continue to haunt him till today. "Because I was a dumb little kid trying to be cool, you know?" Amid all the police brutality that has followed Jeo in the last 13 years, Maria, his mother, has been his saving grace.
