

A dark, moody movie poster. On the left, a man's face is shown in profile, wearing a white knit beanie. A bright flashlight beam from the right illuminates his face and the beanie. In the background, there are some out-of-focus lights, including a green one and a red one. The title 'THEY FLY BY NIGHT' is written in large, bold, black letters on a white, jagged, mountain-like shape at the bottom. Above the title, the text 'A Desert Noir Comedy' is written in a smaller, white font. At the top, the names 'Alex Urbom' and 'Bill Tangradi' are listed in white. At the bottom right, the text 'Written & Directed by Ross Kolton & Bill Tangradi' is written in white.

At a mysterious job interview, a massively in-debt Millennial finds himself caught up in an unpredictable scheme with a Gen-X Upcycler.

When Allen Gravely arrives at a desert Airbnb, he's not there for a vacation getaway but for a cryptic opportunity with a man named Jerry Schrap, an eccentric junk picker who rents out properties crammed with odd items for sale. Skeptical but desperate, Allen agrees to join him on a shady "project," but it soon enters the realm of the precarious and harebrained. Jerry has recruited Allen to help him rob his Airbnb so that he can collect insurance money. As they carry out this plan, Allen comes to a realization that he is merely a pawn in Jerry's scheme, resulting in a deadly final confrontation.
